THE CAT'S MEOW

DON'T MISS AN ISSUE, OR YOU MAY MISS YOUR CONTRIBUTION.

HOW DO YOU DOODLE?

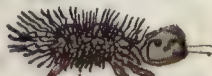

Just fine, we hope. In case you missed the announcement in last month's Comic Club News page, we repeat: Use your noodles and try Comic Club doodles.

Briefly, take any number from 1 to 99 or a letter from A to Z and draw a face around it. Make the number or letter heavier than the rest of the face so we'll know how you began the drawing.

Here's an animal made from a 6:

Or squiggle something like this:

That's a porcupine. Pretty sharp, eh? If you want to draw more than just a face, go to it.

Here's a rib tickler we received from Greg Lipscomb of Charleston, West Virginia. He calls it "Aqua-plane — invention?" Whatever it is — good work, Greg.

UFO's — ARE THEY REAL?

WORDS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

LOOK

Here's an absorbing idea that you should find a lot of fun. You can make words speak for themselves. Here are a few samples. So get out your pad and pencil and make words talk back to you.

CLOCK
SWANS
CLIMB
TILT
LIGHTNING

Well, it isn't likely that our Martian friend across the way would be reading KING KONG — but we hope you are. If not, hop on the first saucer and say "Take me to my dealer." KING KONG is waiting for you at your comic book dealer now!

DINOSAURIA

ORNITHOLESTES

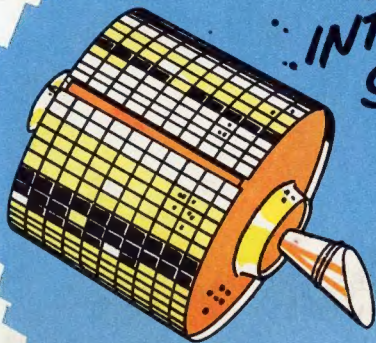

Side by side with the giant flesh-eating dinosaurs were smaller reptilian hunters. One such dinosaur was the ornitholestes. A contemporary of the great allosaurus, this dinosaur was only about six feet long. It had hollow bones and weighed remarkably little. Racing about on its hind feet, ornitholestes was a fleet attacker, and its sinuous neck allowed it to turn its head quickly as it searched for prey. Small, sharp teeth lined its jaws and were well suited for slicing flesh.

Ornitholestes' forelimbs had three long fingers armed with sharp, big claws, ideal for seizing and tearing its catch.

Ornitholestes may have had a need to eat continually, and its light, swift body marked it as a successful hunter.

*INTELSAT III SATELLITE

Like the Early Birds, these satellites will hang thousands of miles above the earth. They will be sent up in 1968. Each one can bounce 1200 telephone calls — and four television channels — from one side of the earth to the other all at the same time. They rotate with the earth and always remain above the same spot on the earth. They get their energy from solar energy cells.

CHEERIOS KID

This is the Cheerios Kid. He gets his energy from Cheerios! Like you he needs go-power every day. And a breakfast of Cheerios with milk is packed with muscle-building protein and energy for go-power. Get yourself Go. Get Cheerios!
